Michael F. Brown is the Lambert Professor of Anthropology and the director of the Oakley Center for the Humanities and Social Sciences at Williams College in Williamstown, Massachusetts. His main research interests include ritual and religion, native peoples of North and South America, medical anthropology, human ecology, and intellectual and cultural property. He has written 5 books, including Tsewa’s Gift: Magic and Meaning in an Amazonian Society and Who Owns Native Culture?, as well as numerous articles and essays.

MLCP WORKING GROUP SESSION

Folklore and Ethnomusicology seminar room, 501 N. Park Ave. (corner of 9th and Park)

Thursday, March 5th

2:00-3:30 p.m.

Michael F. Brown:

The Changing Prospects and Ethical Dilemmas of Fieldwork in Amazonian Peru: Reflections on the Aguaruna Case

Please join us!