Video	English	Ronald Colman and Jane Wyatt star in this lavishly produced classic about the enchanted paradise of Shangri-La where time stands still. This Frank Capra masterpiece had a running time of 132 minutes upon its initial release in 1937. For a World War II reissue, 24 minutes were cut. Film preservationist Robert Gitt, working for over 25 years, has restored a number of missing scenes. The budget for this classic was staggering, costing almost four times the amount of any Columbia film. It continues to captivate the imagination.	Artist: Capra, Frank	Picture

Description:

Tibet

Video	English	"Journey across the 12,000 km of the legendary Silk Road – from Bukhara, across Chinese Turkestan and Tibet, to Mount Everest—for the first time since China closed Tibet's borders in 1949, revealing a close-up view of the most beautiful and remote region on earth. This film contains rare archival footage of ceremonies and ritual public festivals at the Potala, the Dalai Lama's summer palace and the Jakang temple recorded before China's invasion of Tibet. We witness the siege of Ganden Monastery as well as recent footage, shot under the constraints of government approval, showing the Tibetans striving to rebuild their homes and temples in the wake of China's repression."
